

WORLD ANESTHESIA DAY 2023

World anaesthesia day is celebrated every year on 16th October. This marks the successful demonstration of ether as an anaesthetic by W.T.G Morton on this date. The theme of this year's World Anaesthesia day was "Anaesthesia and Cancer Care" - highlighting the critical role of Anaesthesia in cancer care and improve outcome for cancer patients.

This year, like previous years, we at RRMCH celebrated World Anaesthesia Day with several events. PG quiz was conducted on occasion of World Anaesthesia Day amongst our postgraduates.

Department of Anaesthesia, RRMCH conducted a flash mob in Gopalan Arcade Mall, Kengeri, Bengaluru on 1st Nov 2023, to raise the awareness of Anaesthesiologists role in healthcare among general public. Flash mob demonstrated the procedures done by anaesthesiologist in elective and Emergency services. Also successful demonstration of Cardio-pulmonary Resuscitation was done, which involved general public, who were very enthusiastic to learn about the basic life support skill, ie CPR to save lives.

On 4th November, a variety programme was conducted in Kadamba Hall. As the theme of World Anaesthesia day this year was "Anaesthesia and cancer care", Dr. Karthik GS, Professor of Anaesthesia at RRMCH gave a talk on "Anaesthesia and cancer care". This was followed by skit and dance by our postgraduates. Dumb charades was conducted involving all the staff and PGs of RRMCH, which all of them enjoyed.

The programme ended with the prize distribution and cake cutting ceremony, followed by High-tea.
